Alex's Experience

Alex Canning brings a unique blend of expertise in law and pharmaceutical sciences, with over five years of experience applying these skills to the Australian R&D Tax Incentive. He focuses on key sectors such as biotechnology, agriculture, advanced manufacturing, and computer science, where his passion and expertise in navigating complex regulatory frameworks generate significant value for his clients.

Alex consistently secures successful outcomes not only through the R&D Tax Incentive but also via related programmes such as Advance and Overseas Finding - crucial for companies undertaking larger initiatives or expanding internationally, providing them with certainty and strategic direction to effectively scale their innovations.

Alex's strategic approach ensures that companies maximise the value of their R&D activities while maintaining compliance with all regulatory requirements. By closely collaborating with clients, he helps them identify and capitalise on opportunities for growth and innovation, aligning their R&D initiatives with both immediate and long-term business goals.
